America and World Must Face Realities of Postwar Period

You can pick almost any collection of headlines at random from current events and come up with a description of the problem facing our country and world today — and the uncertainty we feel about how to meet that problem.

Here are some sample headlines:

"Foreign Aid Bill in for Rough Time in Senate."

"Truman Orders Move to Support Foreign Trade After ECA Ends."

"GOP Fails to Agree on Farm Program."

What do all these words mean? America has been priming Europe's postwar pump ever since the shooting war ended, and now we'd like to see the continentals pump their own water for a change.

But we're afraid if we do decide to cut out the pump-priming that European trade with us will take a nose-dive, and American factory and farm sales abroad will go to zero.

And what does that last headline mean — "GOP Fails to Agree on Farm Program"? Simply this: The crisis abroad is paralleled by a crisis at home. We have at home the same problem, what to do about pump-priming, that we have abroad. The Democratic administration's policies would particularly like to frame a new farm bill that meets agricultural needs and at the same time is financially sound. . . . But finding the answer is something else again.

So, you see, all these headlines do really tie into the same problem — the problem of our nation and the whole world. . . . using printing press money to cover up the ugly truth that the world is poorer than it was before the war.

We've got to face up to facts sooner or later, of course. Unless the use of printing press money is stopped prices will rise again, and pretty soon transactions will be measured in terms of goods rather than in money.

That's the inevitable cycle of humanity. From the original barter state we proceed to trust our exchanges to a government, which handles them through the medium of money. After a while, between the emergencies of war and the emergencies of postwar politics, government abuses money — and if the abuse becomes terrible enough the government's money is disowned by the people; and they return to barter.

Then the government has to revalue its currency — and we start all over again.

That's the crisis before us today. That's why America wants to cut down on European pump-priming, before our own well is sucked dry. And that's why we are looking over our own domestic pump-priming very closely, whether in the factories or on the farm.

Democracy itself — the very ability of the people to run their own government — is at stake.

The good health of American business requires that the production value of machines in the cities and the value of farm production — which are real wealth — be honestly measured. Trying to measure them by the ballots of those who aren't on the real production line, whether in the factory or on the farm, is an invitation to disaster — the same disaster that smart politicians have brought down on every government that has gone before ours.

Appropriations Bill Due to Hit Trouble

Washington April 3 —(AP)—A vast bill carrying funds for most government spending starts through the house today under a heavy crossfire from economy advocates and those who want more dollars to go for defense.

The first omnibus appropriations bill in recent history, the $29,045,000,164 measure finances the operation of more than 40 federal agencies for the 1951 fiscal year starting July 1. Its total is equivalent to an outlay of $282 for every household in the United States.

Final action on the bill is not scheduled until well after the house Easter recess which starts next Friday and ends on April 18. But this week's debate will give three potent house groups time to marshal their votes.

One group, sparked by Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the house armed services committee, wants the bill's total increased some $600,000,000 to strengthen the nation's defenses.

Another headed by Rep. Taber (R-N.Y.) wants the total cut at least a billion dollars.

Before approving the bill, the committee shaved $1,567,900,504 off the amount requested by President Truman in his budget message.

Even this reduction, the committee said, assumes that the federal government will run $4,153,000,000 in the red next year unless new revenues are found.

The bill carries no funds for the foreign aid program nor does it include so-called permanent and indefinite appropriations such as more than $50,000,000,000 in interest on the national debt.

Administration leaders hope to add an estimated $300,000,000,000 for foreign aid in the expectation that legislation authorizing that program will be passed soon. Unless that happens the aid funds can be kept out by a single objection in the house.

Two negroes charged with sodomy were committed to the state hospital for examination. They are Robert C. White and Ernest Weston.

Eddie Lee Stuart pleaded guilty to petty larceny, fined $10 costs, sentenced to 1 hour in jail.

Elliot Ellis, forgery and uttering plea of guilty and sentenced to a total of 5 years on both counts.

Arkansas to Head Rural Medical Care

Fayetteville, April 3 —(AP)— Promotion of the American Medical association's rural health program will be in charge of an Arkansas agricultural expert for the next year.

Aubrey D. Gates, Little Rock, associate director of the agricultural extension service, has been granted a car's leave of absence to become field director of rural health for the AMA. The announcement was made by Dr. Lippert S. Ellis, dean of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture and director of the extension service.

Dr. Ellis said Lloyd Donohau, assistant director, will be acting as associate director during Gates' absence.

Nationalists Hail Great Victory

Taipei, Formosa, April 31 —(AP)— Nationalist China today hailed its greatest victory of 1950. . . . The smashing Saturday of a Chinese Communist invading force of more than 7,500 on Hainan Island off south China.

Thousands joined a massive parade at Hoihow, capital of Hainan. Tons of firecrackers were set off. Red prisoners were marched through the streets.

"We have destroyed the Communist dream of conquering Hainan," said Gen. Yang-ching, chief of staff for Hainan.

The Nationalists said 5,000 Reds were killed and more than 2,500 were captured.

It was the second Red attempt in six days to land a force on the big island, separated by 10 miles of water from Luichow peninsula. The Nationalists said they "completely annihilated" 4,000 Red invaders March 27.

Some Red survivors tried to escape Sunday but Nationalist warships reported they sank the fleeing junks. Five hundred more Reds surrendered on Hainan.

The Nationalists said much equipment including field pieces, tommy guns and rifles was seized.

Nationalist dispatches usually flaunt the silver lining and ignore the dark clouds. But even allowing for exaggeration, their double victory gave them something to crow over.

On the dark side, the Reds undoubtedly can mass far stronger invasions. Their two attempts have the look of "feeler" moves.

And in a fleet of nearly 100 modern power boats unwittingly supplied by the United Nations, the Reds have the nucleus of a strong invasion fleet.

This is the remnant of 50 and 100 ton fishing vessels given Nationalist China but lost when the Reds captured Shanghai.

Although the vessels can carry relatively few troops, they can be used to tow loaded junks or can be armed as gunboats.

Funds Sought for 9 State Airports

Washington April 3 —(AP)— Congress is being asked to vote about $36,700,000 for improvement of the nation's airports in the year beginning July 1. Nine Arkansas airports are included.

The item, already approved by the house appropriations committee, must be accepted by the house and senate before going to President Truman in the omnibus appropriations bill for his signature.

Debate on the measure opened today in the house.

The committee figures are tentative. They may be changed or deleted by either the house or senate.

Also, as a condition of the federal assistance, local sponsors of the improvements sought must match — in most cases — the government's contribution in whole or in part and in some cases must put up more than the government.

The proposed improvements range from acquisition of land to all types of construction essential to airports. All of the proposals have had the approval of the civil aeronautics administration, which submitted the figures to congress.

Projects, by states and localities, including the federal contribution, and the local sponsor's share (in brackets) include:

Arkansas:

Little Rock, (Adams Field, $176,000 ($158,000); North Little Rock, Municipal, $27,000 ($29,000); Blytheville Municipal, $30,000 ($30,000); West Memphis Municipal, $32,000 ($32,000); Clarksville Municipal, ($10,000) $1; Stuttgart Municipal, $2,000 ($20,000); Walnut Ridge Municipal, $25,000 ($25,000); Texarkana Municipal, $79,128 ($59,129); and Rogers Municipal, $104,19 ($134,129).

Senate Seeks Peek at Files of McCarthy

Washington, April 3 —(AP)— Senate investigators sought today to get a look at Senator McCarthy's secret documents dealing with his "spy for Russia" charges against Owen Lattimore — charges hotly denied by Lattimore.

A senate foreign relations subcommittee arranged a behind closed-doors meeting to discuss getting access to the data which McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, has indicated he is not willing to give the group.

In advance of the session, Senator Green (D-Ri.), acting chairman of the inquiry committee, talked again of issuing a subpoena if McCarthy refuses to take the investigators into his confidence after a formal request for the material.

The committee has subpoenas out now trying to force the FBI and other government agencies to let it see confidential loyalty files. An ironic twist of the investigation: McCarthy gave his information to the FBI and withheld it from the committee, but has insisted the committee see the FBI files, which presumably would include his papers.

McCarthy, meanwhile, made ready to speak out once more — this time from the naval medical center in nearby Bethesda, Md., where he is being treated for a sinus condition. McCarthy called a news conference at the hospital.

His office — without elaborating — said it would be quite important. McCarthy has charged that Lattimore, an American expert on Far Eastern affairs, is Russia's top spy in the state department and the United States. In a senate speech last Thursday McCarthy said he could produce proof to back up his contentions.

McCarthy told his colleagues he has lined up mystery witnesses who would testify that Lattimore is a Soviet agent and that he is now or was once a member of the Communist party.

The senator then turned his material on Lattimore over to the FBI. The senate committee investigating McCarthy's charges of communism in the state department wants the same information.

Lattimore flew into New York Saturday from a United Nations mission in Afghanistan. He told a news conference then that McCarthy is a "madman" and that there is no truth in his accusations.

Lattimore, before he left Afghanistan, termed the charges "pure moonshine." En route home he tagged them "unmitigated lies."

And as he stepped off the plane in New York he called McCarthy a "base and miserable creature."

Lattimore, director of a school of international relations at Johns Hopkins university, is scheduled to go before the inquiry committee tomorrow to make a formal reply to McCarthy.

At his news conference Saturday, Lattimore accused McCarthy of making "an obviously political attack" on the state department. He added:

"I am not and never have been Continued on Page Two

This Is the Time of Year When the Amateur Gardener Starts His Annual Bragging

New York —(AP)— The season of airy madness is upon us. It is the time to find a home on the loam and begin a begonia.

With bulb and seed the spring gardener goeth forth to sow the good earth in his backyard and he cometh in at eventide, racked by his own growing pains and covered with topsoil.

And to save my life this is one class of citizen I cannot understand. I have a dim appreciation of why people are some bird-wonders and my soul knows a sense of sympathy for horseplayers, butterfly collectors and that strange kind of fauna that gets up before dawn to prowling beaches in search of the better seashell.

Their passion for these strange pursuits I don't share but at least I can sense what makes them what they are. But the spring gardener — there's an odd one beyond my crass comprehension.

What primordial urge each spring sends him out to duel the landscape, convinced that this year he can conquer crabgrass gladden the heart of a gladioli and grow a five-pound strawberry? Why does he want to anyway?

All I can see he does is annoy the balance of nature. There he stalks this man without a hoe, giving hormone shots to germinous plants that don't want them, ambushing innocent potato bugs with deadly spray guns and interfering with the home life of robins.

Yes sir from the minute the spring gardener sticks his big green thumb into the backyard there's no rest for bird, bug tree or plant

Whole Town, Part of Wilson Farm, Sells for $1,500,000

Blytheville, April 3 —(AP)— A $1,500,000 real estate transaction — cash at that — has been completed here.

The Armored Planting company purchased the entire town of Armored and 5,600 acres of rich farm land from the vast Lee Wilson estate.

The Armored company is headed by John E. Crain and W. J. Denton, both of Wilson, and E. M. Regenold of Blytheville.

John Crain is the son of James H. Crain, who recently resigned as trustee of the Wilson holdings. Denton is the elder Crain's son-in-law and Regenold was manager of the Lee Wilson interest at Armored and president of Blytheville's first National bank.

Man Convicted of Treason Lost at Sea

Avalon, Catalina Island, Calif., April 3 —(AP)— A man identified from a photograph as one convicted of war time treason, vanished from a small boat at sea.

A few hours later, a mysterious submarine is sighted off the southern California coast.

And the convict, tall, slender, scarred Theodore Donay, 51, Detroit, is reported missing from his home since Wednesday.

These coincidences were pieced together today by authorities investigating the disappearance of a man who rented a boat here Saturday and never returned.

Constable K. McDavid said Ray Dodge, boat rental dock attendant, had identified an Associated Press wirephoto of Donay as his mysterious patron. A wallet left as security for the rented vessel contained a driver's license issued to Donay, McDavid said.

Several hours after the man was due to return with the boat, a search was begun in waters surrounding this island 20 miles off the Los Angeles harbor. McDavid said the boat had its running lights on but the ignition was off when found eight miles northeast of Avalon. The boat contained only a clothing-filled suitcase, he said.

The drifting vessel was found some 125 miles south of point Arguello, where coast guardsmen reported seeing a surfaced submarine at 6:20 a. m. yesterday. The navy said no American submarines were in the area at the time.

McDavid said officers had noted the coincidence of the two events, but there was "no concrete evidence" they were connected in any way.

McDavid said a torn half of a printed form found in the man's hotel room here contained the following words:

"Delivery over the counter in Berlin or by parcel post in Berlin to the Russian zone from stock in Berlin by parcel post from New York:

"No. 265, lard in tins, sugar, rice, roasted coffee, cocoa, whole milk powder, $5.60 lbs."

until snow flies.

By autumn he will total up his victories and find he has raised about $25 worth of vegetables. To do this he will have spent about $500 in fancy tools — he needs more equipment than a paratrooper battalion — $50 in doctor bills, sunburn lotions and ointment, and about $100 in labor. This is figuring his time at a nickel an hour which may be more than it is worth.

All this wouldn't be so bad if these frustrated farmers would stay in their own back yards. But they bring their small triumphs and major disasters — a pea plant that podded, a rose that blighted — into the office. All they talk about is whether they should have banked the azaleas with peat moss and lime or just good old-fashioned hyper humus, whatever that is.

They prattle endlessly on the supposed merits of the outdoor life the more exercise they get, and how much better they sleep at nights, I guess that's hyper humus too. Anyway I don't want any of it.

All I want to do with the good earth in the wonderful season of spring is to wander across it or lie upon it and read a poem or listen to the birds call. I don't hate the worm, and if a bug doesn't bite me I won't DDT him. Nor do I have any desire to hurry the grass — or curdy it either.

And I think it would be a fine thing if all spring gardeners at this magic time would either grub a rhododendron or quit bragging and grow something really impressive — say a redwood tree.

High Court to Rule on Segregation

Washington, April 3 —(AP)— The Supreme court today takes up the question of whether enforced segregation of Negroes violates the constitution.

Up to now the legal doctrine has been that if "separate but equal" facilities are provided there is no unlawful discrimination against Negroes.

Three Negroes, with the support of the justice department, now asks the highest tribunal to give judicial props to segregation with a ruling that "equal rights" must always mean the same, identical rights.

Some lawyers say such a ruling could mean that Jim Crow would be legally dead in this country. Most racial segregation in the United States has been based on the "separate but equal" doctrine.

A preliminary brief filed by Solicitor General Phillip B. Perlman, the government's lawyer before the Supreme court, asserts: "Equal facilities, if separate are rarely ever equal in a physical sense. In most situations they have been used to cloak glaring inequalities. And the very idea of separate facilities, or separate rights, is in itself a negation of the full and complete possession of privileges and immunities of citizenship."

The brief supports the appeal of Elmer W. Henderson, a Negro of this city.

Henderson was a war-time traveling representative of the fair employment practices commission. He said he was unable to get a meal on a southern railway company diner during a trip to Birmingham. Later southern railroads adopted a policy of setting aside a table or two for Negroes in a certain section of dining cars.

But Henderson pressed his fight against such separate facilities. The justice department in supporting Henderson is in the unique position of opposing the case of another government agency — the inter-state commerce commission. The ICC approved dining car segregation. Henderson so-called names as respondents the southern railway and the ICC. The ICC will ask the high court to approve its segregation action.

Tornado in Arkansas Fatal to One

By The Associated Press

Arkansas' second tornado of spring swooped down Sunday killing one person and damaging property in two northeast Arkansas areas.

Mrs. Floyd Clayton was injured fatally when a tornado demolished her home a mile east of Tuckerman Sunday afternoon. Her husband was seriously injured and their three children and five members of a visiting family were hurt.

The storm struck while most Jackson county doctors were attending a funeral in Tuckerman. The funeral service for Dr. J. B. Ivy was delayed while the doctors treated the injured.

The tornado also demolished a home a mile south of the Clayton place, but caused no injuries there. Several buildings were damaged.

About two hours later, a small tornado struck some 75 miles to the east.

Would Prevent Crisis When Aid Plan Ends

Key West, Fla. April 3 —(AP)— Administration hurried on President Truman's orders today to find a way to take a drastic "dollar gap" action when Marshall plan aid to war-torn Europe ends in 1952.

The key figure in this latest dollar-economic maneuver is the scholarly Gordon Gray, who is leaving his post as secretary of the army to undertake the assignment as special assistant to President.

Gray will work at his new post until he leaves it in September to become president of the University of North Carolina. He is to succeed in the army department Budget Director, Frank P. Gray's problem under presidential direction is to find some way in which foreign dollars can be obtained to pay for American ports.

At present under the assistance program, the U.S. is virtually making up the difference between what it exports — about $6,000,000,000 annually — and its imports — about $10,000,000,000 — by providing around $500,000,000 in United States grants to democratic allies.

What worries the "President" is what will happen when the European recovery program comes to an end at the close of 1952.

In lieu of direct aid, Gray's problem is to find a way to buy up foreign buying power by pulling the way to:

1. Increased exports to United States in the form of merchandise.
2. Increased foreign services such as shipping, tourist attractions and insurance.
3. Increased United States private investments abroad, particularly under the point four program for technical assistance in underdeveloped areas.

In a letter to Gray yesterday Mr. Truman declared: "The job you are undertaking is one of the most important to this country."

The U.S. assistance program is helping to European and other shattered countries. The program went on, "is of course a temporary measure."

A White House memorandum pointed out that unless certain measures are worked out, it will be that U.S. exports will sharply reduced, with serious repercussions on our domestic economy and with equally serious effects on friendly areas of the world which are dependent on our goods.

He warned that the aid stimulating foreign recovery aimed at strengthening the economies of free nations "against communist subversion or aggression."

Invalid Happy That Stubby Came Home
Colorado Springs, Colo., April 3.—The old spangle was back in Della Shaw's eyes today. That's the only way the 15-year-old girl could show Stubby she was glad he's back home. She's been an invalid since birth and can't talk. Maybe she's the reason the six-year-old mongrel dog trudged 1,000 miles from Indiana to come home. It took him a year and a half, but Stubby made it.

"We know she's happy," said the girl's grandfather, Harry McKinzie. "We can tell by the look on her face."

McKinzie, a grain buyer, his wife and granddaughter moved to Indianapolis in 1948. They stayed four months and decided to return here. Somewhere between Indianapolis and Decatur, Ill., on Sept. 22, Stubby jumped out of the moving truck. McKinzie missed him when he stopped at Decatur.

Stubby, who gets his name from his stub tail, was Della's pet. McKinzie asked the help of newspapers and the Decatur Humane society. He returned once when the society thought it had found Stubby, but it was the wrong dog.

"We just couldn't buy another dog," he said. "We never lost hope he might show up."

Last week, as McKinzie walked past a house where he used to live he saw Stubby sitting on the sidewalk. His footpads were swollen. He was bloated from hunger. His hide was disheveled and dirty. He hardly knew his master.

McKinzie shouted "Stubby," picked him up, and took him to the house where the family now lives.

Stubby is getting three cans of dog food a day and lots of sleep. "Pretty soon he'll be like his old self," McKinzie said. "but we have to watch him. Sometimes he tries to run back to our old house."

AZALEA PALMER opened her eyes wide in Martin Queripel's office and sighed as if to herself:

"That's the first time in my life I ever fainted. I like it! I think I'll make a habit of it. I've had a perfect rest. Old-fashioned things are the best. And now, I'm a poet!"

Azalea blinked her eyes, seemingly suddenly to become aware of the three serious gentlemen, gazing at her knees. Her eyes traveled toward her feet, which Queripel had propped ridiculously on the edge of the office chair in order to cause the blood to flow to her head and bring her out of her fainting spell.

She emitted a shrill little scream as she covered her knees and dropped her legs to the floor. The three gallant gentlemen showed embarrassed expressions for a moment until Azalea, realizing the humor of the situation, awarded them a forgiving smile.

She refused the six outstretched hands from the three gentlemen surrounding her, gathered herself into a mystery of action and was on her feet and into her chair again, facing Martin Queripel, the private detective, his assistant, Timothy O'Hea, and the young lawyer, Harley Kenyon.

Her first words to Queripel were: "Does Paul know all this you've told me?"

Queripel shook his head. "Paul Moody doesn't know," he said. Now she was ready for hysterics. She cried:

"Why not, in heaven's name? How cruel to keep him waiting! Run, run! Tell him!"

"Why don't you go and tell him yourself," Queripel proposed. "Oh, how I'd love to! But he told me he wouldn't let me see him behind the bars. He forbade me to come to the jail. He said he couldn't bear it."

Queripel had an answer even for this.

"If you're going to be the wife of that square-jawed sculptor you'd better begin to assert your control over him before it is too late."

"That's true! Let's go!" Azalea paused, then asked: "Can I see him if I go to the jail?"

HARLEY KENYON reassured her that she could, and added, "You won't see him behind bars in a cell. I'll have one of the turnkeys drag him to your feet in the conference room."

"Come on!" she cried and dashed from the room, the men following after her like the tail of a comet.

Queripel was thinking that he would really have to let O'Hea drive his car, since he could not trust his own sleepy and shattered nerves, but Azalea led the way to her own limousine, with the uniformed chauffeur to open the door for them.

They piled in and reached the jail, whizzing past traffic policemen too busy making out tickets for minor speedsters to notice their outlaw velocity.

After brief delays that were eternities to Azalea, a guard brought Paul Moody to the conference room. The young sculptor came in sullenly, never dreaming that Azalea was to be there.

When his cell-weary harrowed eyes met the rainbows and lightnings glowing and gleaming behind her tear-drenched eyelashes, his cry was a mingling of agony and rapture.

He rather groaned than laughed as he crushed her in his powerful arms. And she was so blissful and so glad to be so hurt by his too that it ought to be considered ahead of almost any other project. The general, former chairman of the joint chiefs of staff who now is president of Columbia university, proposed that the air force be given at least $1,500,000,000 a year for new planes to keep up its fighting strength. This is $150,000,000 more than the house appropriations committee has allowed in approving a omnibus money bill.

tervent embrace that she cried herself blind.

She tried to tell Paul all that had happened and to tell everything all at once. So he had not the faintest idea of what she was saying, and had to look over her shoulder to Queripel for information and interpretation.

When he learned all clearly, his knees buckled and Azalea had to hold him up. She said:

"Go on and faint! That's what I did! It's wonderful."

But he disobeyed her—for perhaps the last time.

HE was ready to rush for his hat and make a dash for freedom. But Kenyon had to tell him that whole spoils of legal red tape had to be reeled off before he could be released from custody.

This was almost a more crushing blow than his first miserable entry into jail. But brave Azalea was there with the build-up of cheer. She said:

"When I realize how the women will mob you and how all the beautiful models will pose for your beautiful sculptures and make me look like a mess in miniature, I think I'll just arrange to have you kept in here for life. Steel bars will be a comfort, provided I can move in and share your quarters with you. Can you arrange that, Mr. Queripel?"

"I'll try," lied the very private detective.

But Paul Moody was staring at her with a gaze of adoration that seemed fairly to devour her. He drew her into his arms more lightly and said:

"Steel bars? They can be broken. But your little round arms—oh, Azalea! Ouch!"

THAT was when she clenched him so tightly that his own ribs hurt. Then their lips met and—

The jailer, being a modest man, turned his eyes away.

And so did Timothy O'Hea, who had a wife.

And so did Harley Kenyon, who could not bear the sight.

And so did Martin Queripel.

And so, no doubt, will the gentle reader.

New Semi-Pro Loop Sets Up Regulations

Representatives of the eight member teams in the newly formed southwest Arkansas league, for semi-pro teams, met Sunday afternoon at the Camden country club to complete final plans for the loop and draw up a schedule.

Many questions pertaining to the operation of the league were discussed and by-laws approved by the members in length business session. President Jack Clemens, Magnolia, presided.

The league will open its season on Sunday April 16 when the Springhill, La. sports meet the Waldo Giants on the Waldo diamond.

Other loop members will swing into action on Tuesday the 18 when the El Dorado Lion Oilers open with the southern Kraftsmen at Camden; Mineral Springs journey to Murfreesboro for a contest with the Red Sox; and Gordon opens with the Legionnaires at Hope.

The Hope team starts practice sessions at Fair Park tonight. The league season is scheduled to come to a close on Friday August 25, to be followed by a Shagbushy playoff by the first four teams in the final loop standings. James Bechtelheimer, Camden news sports editor, was selected as league statistician. He will handle weekly releases as league standings. Pitchers won-loss records, and semi-monthly releases of the official batting averages. Each team will be permitted 21 players on their roster for the first two weeks of the season, 19 players for the next two weeks, and 18 players for the balance of the season. Player managers are included in this number. There may be a non-player manager in uniform besides the afore stated numbers.

Any player not released by his club must wait four weeks before being permitted to play with another team in the league.

Douglas Points to Halfbacks With Pride

By CARL BELL

Fayetteville, April 3 —(P)—Talk about halfbacks The Arkansas Razorbacks have 'em.

Looking back over spring football practice which now is at an end, Coach Ollie Douglas can pick at least five sets of the lads who carry the brunt of the running from his split T formation and count on a top performance from each.

Another point driven home by the off-season drills is that Larry Houge is most likely to divide time with Don Logue, last year's No. 1 ball-handler, at the quarterback slot.

These were factors which stood out Saturday in the third of a series of intrasquad games, in which the Reds beat the Whites for the first time, 28-25.

There was some great running by halfbacks, and a great running by fullbacks, too. Dean Pryor, Buddy Rogers, Buddy Sutton, Sam Reeves, Tommy Brit and Johnny Cole.

In addition, injuries kept Sammy Furo and Billy McFarland on the sidelines; the veteran Ross Pritchard was at the Texas Relays with the track team, and Joe Dugan, a other fine ball carrier, was used only on defense due to a leg ailment.

Logue didn't play either, because of a slow-healing knee injury, and there wasn't a quarter-back on the field who could hit Houge, a 197-pound Dermott product who'll be only a sophomore next fall.

Kansans Look Good in Texas Relays

Austin, Tex., Apr 13—(P)—Thirty-clads from the University of Kansas and Kansas State college showed real class in the annual Texas relays here Saturday.

"The Kansas Jayhawks' great middle distance corps won three events and set a meet record in winning one of them."

Pat Bowers, Kansas' record-breaking half-miler, who was voted the "outstanding performer of the relays," was the key man in each of the Jayhawk team victories.

A Negro business man was asked the secret of his success. He replied: "Ah never attempts the impossible and always cooperates with the inevitable."

HENDRIX WINS

Conway, Ark. 3 —(P)—Hendrix college won a triangular track meet here Saturday. Hendrix made 80 1-2 points to a combined total of 60 1-2 by Arkansas A- and Little Rock Junior college.
